What is Cyberbullying?

CyberBullying?

“Cyberbullying involves the use of information and communication technologies such as e-mail, cell phone and pager text messages, instant messaging, defamatory personal Web sites, and defamatory online personal polling Web sites, to support deliberate, repeated, and hostile behaviour by an individual or group, that is intended to harm others.”

A Typical Cyberbully

- usually between the ages of 9 & 14 years old.
- usually knows their victim in real life.
- anyone, if aggravated enough.
- often the victims of offline bullying.
- girls typically cyberbully using communications and public postings.
- boys typically cyberbullying using technology, hacking and malicious code.
- teens over 14 are usually sexually harrassed, rather than just cyberbullied.

A Typical Victim

- usually between the ages of 9 & 14 years old.
(usually older if sexually harrassed)
- sometimes a schoolyard bully
- someone who may have offended someone inadvertently either offline or online.
- sometimes the victim of offline bullying as well.
- any child can be the victim of cyberbullying, and children are also more likely to be victims of online sexual harrassment.

Categories of Cyberbullies

Typically, there are 4 types of cyberbullies:

- Vengeful Angels: Individuals using technology to “right past wrongs”.
- Power Hungry or “Revenge of the Nerds: Bullying for power in the schoolyard, or the ironic twist of offline bullies becoming online bullies.
- “Mean Girls”: Doing it for entertainment or the “drama”, often done in groups (not necessarily just girls).
- Unintentional Cyberbullies: Individuals who didn’t mean to cyberbully, but reacted in anger or were misunderstood.

How is this Different?

- Cyberbullies can much more easily hide behind the anonymity that technology can provide.
- Instigators are much more difficult to catch, as they are often more difficult to identify.
- Messages can be communicated to individuals or groups easily and with tremendous speed.
- Cyberbullying often falls beyond the legal reach of schools and schoolboards.
- Victims are often reluctant to report incidents in fear that parents will remove their access to technologies (e.g., Internet, cellular phones).

Star Wars Kid Files Lawsuit

Wired News Report

12:33 PM Jul. 24, 2003 PT

The parents of the infamous "Star Wars Kid" are suing classmates who posted a humiliating video of their son on the Net, according to Canada's Globe and Mail.

Quebec teenager Ghyslain Raza was the target of worldwide mockery when a private video he made of himself practicing his lightsaber moves was uploaded to the Net by kids at his school.

Now his parents are claiming damages of $160,000 from the families of the four classmates who digitized and published the video. Ghyslain's parents claim their son was so humiliated, he is undergoing psychiatric care and may be marked for life by the experience.

Ghyslain's video was posted to the Kazaa file-sharing network in the spring.

The two-minute video shows an overweight teenager fighting a mock battle with a golf-ball retriever doubling as a lightsaber. The teenager twirls the "lightsaber" ever more energetically while generating his own sound effects. It is obviously not for public consumption.

Ghyslain was so teased about the video, he dropped out of school and finished the semester at a children's psychiatric ward, according to a lawsuit filed in the Raza's hometown of Trois-Rivières, Quebec.

MSN

What is IM?

- An instant messenger (IM) is a specialized software client that allows instant text, audio or video communication between two or more people through a network such as the Internet.
- IM conversations happen in “real-time”, versus applications such as email where communication is asynchronous.
- IM clients usually allow users to build ‘buddy’ lists.
- Most IM clients incorporate an ‘awareness’ feature which indicates which ‘buddies’ are currently online.

Message Boards/Groups

- Message boards are used by netizens to discuss various topics. They can be a great way to share information and opinions, but can also be used to bully to to sexually harrass participants.
- Message boards are usually themed around particular topics such as popular culture, politics, education, teen life, or just about anything else.
- Message groups usually have a moderator, but can be very strictly or loosely monitored.

- Brandy says I Would Kill... The Count!
One night The Count was flying around aimlessly and ended up in a bad part of da skreet. Gang members quickly moved in on their prey. They gave hin one, two, three blows to the head, four, five , six kicks to the groin, seven, eight nine lashes with a chain and ten, yes boys and girls, ten shots were fired into his back.

Lotus666 replies Brandy, you Count very nicely. (Spelling needs improving, but all is forgiven for your impeccable style!) Guess this takes the old fang merchant "down for the Count"!

Text Messaging

- Text messaging is a very popular communication method for teens.
- Text messages can be sent phone to phone, computer to phone or phone to computer.
- Computer to phone messages can be very difficult to trace.

Webpages and Blogs

- Personal webpages have long been used by students to post personal information and create 'homepages'.
- Webpages are generally open to the public and instantly searchable by major search engines (e.g., Google).
- While once more difficult to create, blogging has emerged as a simple way of creating and publishing personal online journals.
- While webpages and blogs can be excellent educational and reflective tools, they certainly can and have been used to bully and defame other children.

DIE YOU EVIL TEACHER!!!!!!

You ever had an awful teacher before? I mean, so awful that you could just pull out a gun and blow the brains out of him/her right then and there? Well I have, and it's not pleasant. Trust Me.

This web site is dedicated to evil teachers. I, along with some other friends of mine who also have teachers like this would like to start a campaign-- THE KILL EVIL TEACHER campaign.

Let me explain a bit more thouroughly on how awful these teachers are. They assign at least two hours of stupid, perplexing homework every night. I mean GOSH, how can us kids put up with this ?*! And if you think that's bad, dig this--> For the third semester at school, one of them assigned a BOOK, a stupid BOOK! I'm just fed up with this crap! And I'm sure all of their other students feel the same way! You know what I would like to do to them to start with? THIS:

I hope now you understand how awful these teachers really are, you will join the KILL EVIL TEACHER campaign, right?

We often wondered how we could show mankind its true value.
To say what we really think of people does not lead to anything but making an insult, those being too stupid to face their reality.

Indeed, death is the only finality of life but it is taboo for humans.
People are inferior, despicable in their attitude and their appearance.
For a few years, we have thus learned how to appreciate death and to find that the only beauty of manhood was when it died.
Then we started to collect all the documents, books and magazines
we could find in the whole world, with photographs of corpses displayed inside.

Finally, we created this site. Doesn' t this convince you that death is the goal of your life ? Look at the splendid colors of these corpses

Social Networking Sites

- Many teens are now becoming active in social networking services such as Hi-5 or Friendster.
- On such sites, students form virtual friendship communities, communicate with others, give testimonials, share personal journals and post announcements to shared spaces.
- Such sites can be used to replicate existing school-based cliques, and exclusion from such sites can also be a form of bullying.

A Look @ Digital Culture

Digital Natives vs. Digital Immigrants

As Digital Immigrants learn ... to adapt to their environment, they always retain, to some degree, their "accent," that is, their foot in the past. The "digital immigrant accent" can be seen in such things as turning to the Internet for information second rather than first, or in reading the manual for a program rather than assuming that the program itself will teach us to use it. ~Prensky, 2001

"N-geners ultimate computer":

What I would really like is a little credit card on the bottom of the screen and when an ad for something I like comes on I could click on the little card ... It would also be a telephone and you could call your friends ... and ... see what they're wearing... It would also be a stereo and give me any CD or music video I requested. But I want really good sound ... (Tapscott, Growing Up Digital)

Paris Hilton's cell phone hacked?

Published: February 21, 2005, 3:35 PM PST

By Steven Musil

From blogging to vanity surfing, technology is helping to inflate a new generation of egos of magnitudes never seen before.

A representative for T-Mobile confirmed Monday that information from Hilton's T-Mobile Sidekick has been posted online.

"T-Mobile's computer forensics and security team is actively investigating to determine how Ms. Hilton's information was obtained," the company said in a statement. "This includes the possibility that someone had access to one of Ms. Hilton's devices and/or knew her account password."

The Sidekick allows owners to make phone calls, surf the Web, take pictures, and send e-mail and instant messages. It uses an online server to store at least some information, including phone numbers.

Five Things We Need To Know...

1. All technological change is a trade-off.
2. The advantages and disadvantages are never distributed equitably.
3. Embedded in every technology is a powerful idea, sometimes more than one.
4. It's not an additive, it's ecological.
5. Media tend to become mythic.

Assault of girl posted on internet

Last Updated Sat, 02 Apr 2005 07:06:03 EST
CBC News

SASKATOON - A teenage girl from Saskatoon who found a video of herself on the internet getting beaten says she's forgiven the girls who assaulted her.

"I'm not going to hold it against them because I know how it is. If 50 people are pressuring you to do it you're going to do it," said Jessica Beamish, 14.

Beamish, a student at E.D. Feehan high school in Saskatoon, said that earlier this month she was walking with a friend when she was jumped and repeatedly punched and kicked by two other girls. She lost consciousness and received cuts and bruises.

At least 100 people were watching the fight, she said.

Schools Ban Camera Phones Amid 'Happy Slapping' Craze

By Tim Ross, PA Education Correspondent

Head teachers have banned children from using video phones to slap other pupils in the face and recording the attacks.

The violent new craze among teenagers – dubbed "happy slapping" – has been plaguing commuters.

Now schools have been forced to take action to stop the violence spreading into playground bullying.

London's Evening Standard reported that teachers at Crofton School in Lewisham, south London, had confiscated mobile phones after pupils were caught recording the attacks.

A number of other schools are thought to have taken similar action.

A spokesman for Lewisham Council said: "Schools take

QUOTE

Christina came to Danbury two years ago to live with her aunt, Shelly Rilling, because her parents had substance abuse problems.

with grief counselors.

"I'm so devastated," former teacher Andrea Canniello said.

(CBS) At her Catholic school, sixth-grader Christina Long made good grades, led the cheerleading squad and was an altar girl. On the Internet, she used provocative screen names and routinely had sex with partners she met in chat rooms, police said.

Police said 13-year-old Christina was strangled by a married restaurant worker she met on the Internet. Her body was found early Monday in a remote ravine in Greenwich.

Saul Dos Reis, 25, an undocumented immigrant from Brazil, confessed Sunday to the killing and led law officers to the body, U.S. Attorney John Danaher III said.

Classes were canceled Tuesday at the St. Peter School so students and parents could attend a memorial service and meet
